WHAT'S WRONG WITH HUNTER AUCTIONS

Two gentlemen from the Genesee Valley, Bob Dygert and Joe O'Dea, need a word of commendation for a lot of hard work and not too much to show for it. This upper New York state section of the country has made a first rate reputation and justifiably so, for a good, strong type Thoroughbred, ideal to make hunters and show horses. Genesee-breds have proven themselves on innumerable occasions.

The Valley is full of farmer horsemen who like to go foxhunting and make a few good horses for the market. Recently when racing stock was at a premium, they sold yearlings as racing stock. Now that the market has tightened up, most of the breeders are returning to the base upon which they made the Valley's reputation, first rate hunters with the emphasis on substance, stamina and ability to hunt over any man's country. It is an ideal place to buy a good one.

To lend impetus to this return into the hunter market, Messrs. Dygert and O'Dea who are horsemen from way back and know the Valley and the impact it has made and will continue to make in the hunter and jumper world, thought they would put on a sale with particular emphasis on the hunter prospect. About 300 people attended and about 30 came from away from the Valley and its immediate environs. Actually there were plenty of people on hand to make a good sale, but Messrs. Dygert and O'Dea were experimenting with a nut that is hard to crack.

A hunter auction is one of the most difficult of all sales to put on successfully and this was not a successful sale in the terms of good prices. It was a brilliant sale from the buyer's angle. One grand Thoroughbred mare by Whichmate, out of a long female line of Wadsworth hunter breeding and only 7 years old, brought but $525. She was fat and barefoot from a spring on grass but her record and her breeding made her the type of honest hunter that everyone looks for and is prepared to pay for through the nose.

What was the trouble then with this sale and with others like it that have been full of disappointment for too many people who are making an honest effort to develop a good hunter market? One might as well speak in generalities, as the first Genesee Valley hunter auction is not the first of its kind to bring low prices.

There are a great many people looking for good hunters at this time of year. The market for show horses is also strong. A forced sale of quality stock would have brought high prices, but hunters and hunter prospects are hard to evaluate at an auction. People looking for hunters in this country prefer a trial in the hunting field and a private sale with an individual. Why? There is no yardstick such as in racing stock or in a name show horse for which $15,000 today is a common enough figure.

Really great hunters have brought this figure, too, but privately and upon the word of an owner personally known to the buyer. First, then, at a hunter auction, there should be a warranty to give buyers confidence. It is done in England where hunter auctions have been run successfully for many years. Such warranties can be in the form of actual certificates that pass from the owner to the buyer as the horse is sold. It states specifically what the seller warrants his horse will do. If the horse does not perform up to the warranty, and this warranty can be just what the seller wants it to be, the buyer can have his money back. Hunter sales should also allow bidding by the seller. It will bring in a better quality of hunter, and any sale to be a success, needs top quality. There is nothing wrong with seller bidding so long as everyone knows the owner is bidding. Finally, and this is most important, there must be a reputation behind sales. Genesee should not be too discouraged. They sold 16 horses out of 57 in their first effort and those 16 were of sufficient quality and at such bargains, as to bring other horsemen back next year. A first rate hunter sale in the center of one of our best hunter sections is something that could do the hunter industry a great deal of good. It is not easy to find top hunters to fit everyone's pocketbook and fox-hunters suffer thereby. This auction on the part of Genesee horsemen can be a good foundation for future sales just so long as the Valley horsemen will furnish a quality to attract the buyers and a warranty to protect them.

Hunting In Pre-Revolutionary Russia

Feud Has Always Existed Between the Partisans of Borzois and Greyhounds As To Relative Speed of the Breeds

Prince Serge Cantacuzene
Count Speransky

Hunting as it was practiced in Russia before the first World War, that is with borzois and pack, was unknown outside the country.

It was possibly an anachronism for the twentieth century, being the remnant of a past epoch and was the same as that depicted in middle age literature, paintings, engravings, tapestries and embroideries.

In the so called civilized Western World, the old way of hunting was gradually transformed and replaced by that practiced in present days—hunting with a pack alone or coursing hares and other game with greyhounds.

Only in Russia, and that up to the time of the 1917 revolution, did one still hunt with borzois and pack, the latter being used only as beaters to the former. It is not known if this sport still exists behind the iron curtain, but it is to be doubted, as the present rulers would probably consider it as reactionary and demoralizing to the inhabitants of the red paradise.

At all times Russian landowners, even small ones, kept some breed of coursing hounds and the larger ones a pack as well.

Methods of hunting, traditions, even terms employed in hunting, were the same as those used by generations of our forefathers and came down to us unchanged from the remotest times. Even the best manual on hunting—the Russian hunting man's credo to the last, was written in the XVIIth century by Tzar Alexis of Russia.

The same can be said of the borzoi as a breed and about the salient points of its standard. The oldest Russian embroideries and tapestries, at the time when drawing and painting was still an unknown art in Russia, show a hound very similar to the present day sporting borzoi. We insist on the word "sporting," as by this term we mean the useful field hound not one of those stupid, long nosed, razor blade built atrocities, caricatures of the real thing, which can be seen on continental and British show benches.

As far as the author knows and has heard, in the States only have borzois been used for hunting coyotes and wolves. In the late twenties the author was pleasantly surprised to see at the Paris International dog show a first class borzoi dog, sent over from the Valley Farm Kennels near Chicago. This hound carried quite a few scars from wounds inflicted during his field work, proof he was no lounge lizard, spiv, we believe they are called now. The best Russian hunt could have been proud to own such a specimen of the breed, but one must admit this is but a very rare exception.

That hunting in Russia was unchanged for centuries, was due to the character of the country. This in most parts was quite unsuitable for hunting either with a pack or borzois alone. In central and eastern Russia, the cradle of hunting, where packs and borzois were numerous to the end, the country is flat with many coverts, mostly of woods and thickets, varying in size from a few acres to many hundreds, separated from each other by only small fields, open spaces or glades. If one adds that, apart from a few narrow ditches, there was nothing jumpable, it will be understood that it was an ideal country only for hunting with borzois and pack. The same can be said of Southern Russia, before the real steppe (the flat plain which stretches to the shores of the Black Sea, where a pack is a useless luxury) is reached. Here woods and thickets, it is true, are scarce, but large marshes, where game was plentiful, lay along rivers and ponds and the best packs had their work cut out to draw them.

Till the eighties of last century, game was so plentiful all over Russia that though foxes were hunted regularly, wolves alone were recognised game animals, as for hares these were coursed only in such cases when owners wanted to check their borzois speed or as additional meat for the kettles. This state of things could not last and what with the growth of population and the development of agriculture and stock breeding, wolves became less numerous and by 1900 had disappeared completely in the South of Russia. Most hunts had to be content with hunting foxes and even old timers could no longer treat hares with disdain.

These new conditions modified the outlook of hunting men on what was required of the borzoi as well as of the pack. Greater speed became essential and this for both breeds.

Breeders of borzois, by judicious selection and crossing inside the breed, achieved very good results in a comparatively short time, with no marked change in the standard of the breed. At the time of the 1917 revolution, the Russian borzois were as good if not better than those bred by our forefathers. A little lighter, not quite as high, few dogs stood over 30 inches, bitches a little less, they kept all the characteristics of the breed.

Not so with the Russian hound. New circumstances played havoc amongst them. The old Russian hound would probably not have been greatly admired by present day M. F. H.'s, but handsome is as handsome does and they were outstanding in the work which they were called to do. Used mostly for hunting wolves in a very cold and damp climate, thick coverts, often in half flooded marshes, working day in day out with but little rest, from September to February they could not have much in common with the present day British foxhound or the French staghound. All the different breeds, what ever part of the country they hunted, had some main points in common. These were: iron legs and feet, wonderful staying and scenting power and thick, though flat, coats enabling them to stand cold, dampness and snow. Much heavier than modern western hounds they were too often rough, sullen, fierce and bad tempered in kennels, in a word tough customers, hard to handle and hunt. They varied in colour (the oldest and best breed had completely disappeared by the end of the XIXth century) for hunting wolves, was wolf grey in colour, with a thick wolf like under coat. The other breeds, which existed to the last, were mostly black and tan, pure light tan and dark tan, or nearly red.

To comply with the new conditions, that is increase the speed of hounds and breed them somewhat lighter, breeders instead of selecting and breeding inside existing breeds, and aiming for quicker results tried a short cut and started breeding to British foxhounds. This would have been alright if Russian breeders had had a notion of what a good foxhound looked like, but they knew nothing or very little about them. Most appalling animals were imported in large numbers and needless to say with disastrous results. To try and mend matters, attempts were made to breed to French staghounds, which was even worse. To cut a story short, breeders luckily realized at last their mistakes and came back to the slower but surer way of selection. Some bred back to the original Russian lighter breeds, others were, after a few years able to fix a new breed: the Anglo-Russian hound, used successfully in many hunts. Two such packs, one of each breed were kept to the end by Grand Duke Nicolas of Russia in his world famed Pershino kennels, and were equally good in the field.

Tradition demanded that borzois only should be used for hunting and oldtimers admitted of no other breed for this purpose. This notwithstanding, in Southern Russia, eastern breeds, cousins to the present day African Slough, famous for their staying powers, were often used and bred. The best were the so called Crimean hounds. Later greyhounds were tried with excellent results. They were not only very good for coursing foxes, but in some cases hunted wolves, though not over two season old ones. First class dogs and bitches were imported ever year from England with the result, that locally bred greyhounds could and did compete successfully with the very best of their British born brethren.

Crossbreeding of greyhounds with borzois was tried many a time, but the results were always disappointing and these experiments were definitely dropped.

These notes would be incomplete if a few words were not said about the feud which has always existed between the partisans of borzois and greyhounds as to the relative speed of these two breeds. Arguments waxed fast and furious, each faction sticking to its guns and no agreement was ever reached. The author, jointly with his brother, had for many years bred borzois and greyhounds, using them for hunting and also successfully taking part with both breeds in coursing events. In his opinion there is only one verdict. Each breed is faster in certain circumstances, having been bred for generations for different purposes. This sounds rather involved, but is not in reality. The borzoi was bred for short courses and therefore had to achieve the greatest possible speed in the shortest time, in other words bred to be a sprinter, "shoot-ing", as it was called in hunting parlance. The greyhound on the contrary had often to run a very long course, depending on the speed and strength of the hare. Speed was, of course, also essential, but so was a great staying power and, like all stayers, a greyhound gets into its full stride only after having covered quite some distance. Therefore the logical conclusion can easily be reached and has often been proved by trials in the field. When a borzoi and greyhound of equal merit are slipped together, the borzoi will distance the greyhound in the first two hundred yards or so, past that distance the greyhound will take the lead and keep it till he turns the hare. If then the hare is not killed the greyhound will take the lead again and keep it to the end, the borzoi some times overrunning himself and stopping, unable to run further. These facts, as already stated, have been proved many a time and most Russian hunting men will admit it. Not so the fanatics of each breed. No trial will satisfy them and each will stubbornly stick to his or her opinion, whatever the proofs to the contrary.

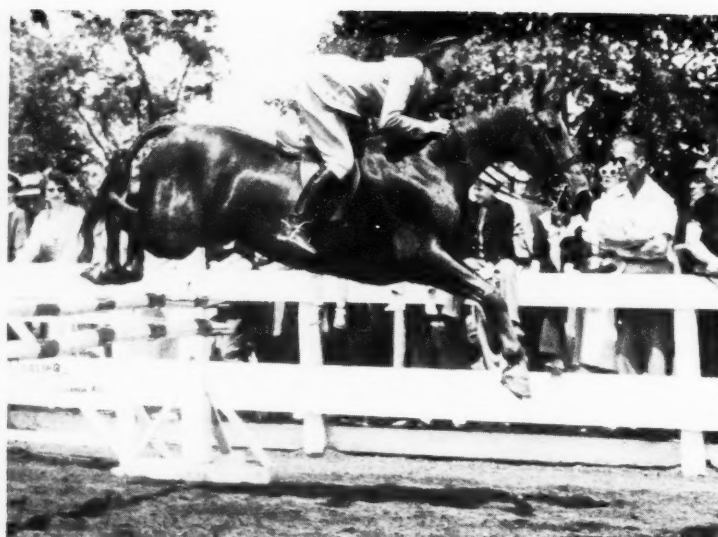

BORZIATNIK (slipper) Three Borzois were always used as a team. The horse is typical of one of the Churasian breeds and carries a brand.

SHOW CIRCUITS

BLUE RIDGE HUNT HORSE SHOW

There is scarcely a lovelier spot to have a horse show than on the grounds of the Frank C. Christopher's Carter Hall at Millwood, Va. The Blue Ridge Hunt Horse Show has grown from a purely local program to an entry list which includes horses which are seen mainly on the major show circuits. However, the show still keeps its same location and horses fresh from the big Devon show were observed galloping over the outside course at Carter Hall when the show was held June 3.

In spite of big name entries, the show still has the aspects of an informal event as a lamb, ham and a service to *Orestes (standing at Kentmere Farm) were sold at auction. Luncheon is served under a big tent and many spectators and exhibitors bring along picnic lunches and make up groups to discuss the morning classes and prospective winners during the afternoon.

Rain really fell after the lunch hour and classes had to be suspended for awhile. After the "clearing off" shower, the announcer, George Ebelhare who was taking a busman's holiday from his busy schedule of managing shows, got the classes rolling again. Mrs. Raymond Barbin walked off with the lion's share of the championships as Robert Fairburn's good young horse, Conning Tower chalked up the green hunter championship ahead of Shawnee Farm's Gentry. Both of these horses are in Mrs. Barbin's stable as is Shawnee Farm's Baby Seal which was reserve hunter champion as Springsbury Farm's Moonlight Bay garnered the tri-color.

BOUMI TEMPLE SHOW

The Boumi Temple Mounted Patrol Horse and Pony Show on May 28 near McDonogh, Md. drew rain, about 6 inches of mud and 75 horses and ponies.

With Claude W. Owen's Sky's Shadow hunter champion, Miss Peggy Skipper's Arbitrator was in for reserve. Arbitrator made a quick trip from Devon where he had been showing in the working division.

Another championship went to Miss Martha Sterbak's good grey pony Surprise while Miss Sandra Scarff's Black Satin was reserve.

Matthew M. Douglas from Harrisburg, Pa. took over the open jumper division with his Sirdon to score 18 points and the championship ahead of Miss Roxie Wagner's Lariat. —Contributed by Bruce Fales, Jr., Chronicle Correspondent.

CIVIL AIR PATROL HORSE SHOW

The 2nd annual Civil Air Patrol Horse Show was delayed about two hours in getting started due to the conditions under foot but finally started its classes on June 4 at Cohoes, N. Y.

Some of the exhibitors took a look at the stiff outside course and decided that their horses were not quite the "mudders" necessary and went home. However, about twelve remained to take a try. Mrs. J. A. Wigmore's Angel, ridden by Russell Stewart, apparently had no qualms about the footing and chalked up blues in open hunter and working hunter and came into the heavy going in the ring to win the novice jumper event.

The 3rd fence in the ring finally had to be taken out as a large mud puddle in front of it got increasingly worse. Angel and Cherry Hill Farm's Brownie tied for the jumper tri-color and made the decision with a coin toss which went in Angel's favor. Brownie is a horse which was shown 3 years ago as a 4-year-old and has not been heard of for quite a while. It was a great surprise when he made his debut with such flying colors. —Contributed by Adrienne Sharpe, Chronicle Correspondent.

DALLAS CHARITY HORSE SHOW

It is always a pleasure to show a jumper at Dallas. It is the only show in Texas given by the big cities that has the jumping classes first and they give splendid trophies. Due to the fact that the big Pin Oaks show was to follow this show in three days, many of the state's jumpers did not compete at Dallas on May 24-28.

Jimmie Burr of Austin brought out his favorite Uptown after a rest of about a year and he apparently had good effects from the layoff.

An interesting twist occurred in the scurry. There was a tie for 3rd between The Moose of the Gray Horse Farm and ridden by Miss Benita Wiedermann and Dublin of Hobby Horse Stables with Jimmie Burr up. When these two jumped off, The Moose managed a perfect go with a time of a full second faster than the winning time.

The handy jumper class was perhaps the closest contest other than the scurry. There was only a half point score between the scores of the first 4 places and just a full point between the 5th. The stake was also a good class. The audience was most enthusiastic when Jimmie Burr was presented with a beautiful sterling silver Lazy Susan for his excellent round. —Contributed by Whitney Donaldson, Chronicle Correspondent.

DOUGHOREGAN MANOR HORSE AND PONY SHOW

The 25th annual Doughoregan Manor Horse and Pony Show was held May 27 near Ellicott City, Md. Juniors really worked toward their championship but in the final analysis, Miss Jackie Ewing's Moonbeam nosed out Billy Boyce III's Smoky Joe for the tri-color by the slim margin of one point.

The hunter championship was the award for Miss Barbara Fruehauf's Dandy Dick with his owner up. Miss Jerry Kilby rode Mrs. Foster Fenton's Rick Rack for reserve. —Contributed by Bruce Fales, Jr., Chronicle Correspondent.

EMMA WILLARD

The Emma Willard School held its annual horse show on May 13 in the Emma Willard Riding Ring at Troy, N. Y. Horses from the school gave good performances against outside competition and retained many of the ribbons for the home tackroom. Miss Lee Warncke from Emma Willard chalked up the horsemanship championship and among the horses, Emma Willard School's Sporting Chance was working hunter champion.

GAY'S STABLES SPRING HORSE SHOW

The Seattle Equities in colorful Spanish costumes opened Gay's Stables 18th Annual Horse Show on May 18, at Seattle, Wash. The classes of this 4-day show were interspersed with performances by the Pinto Drill, The Seattle Equities and the Novikoff School of Dance. Ribbons were well scattered but the juniors had to work for ribbons in the junior or children's jumping. Four horses went clean and after the jump offs, Miss Pat Long and Flame were the winners. This was the young lady's first blue in a jumping class.

The Back Alley class with its array of jumps was an easy event for McCleave Stables' veteran open jumper, Good Friday. —Contributed by Helen Cook, Chronicle Correspondent.

GREENWICH HORSE SHOW

The 34th annual Greenwich Horse Show held June 10-11 at Greenwich, Conn., opened the 3-horse show circuit in Connecticut which is concluded with the Fairfield event.

Two greys stood out at the show, the E. O. Smith's Thunderlark and the W. Haggin Perry's Joseph's Coat. Thunderlark, ridden by Miss Mary Gilman and Raymond Burr, chalked up 18 1-2 points for the conformation hunter tri-color as Fairview Farm's Glen Erin was reserve with 14 1-2 points. Joseph's Coat, with Mrs. Perry up, assumed the long lead of 14 points against 7 points for stablemate Strideaway to hang up the young hunter championship.

Another owner-ridden entry, the personable Kathleen N, was on hand to handle the working hunter division. Mrs. Ralph T. King rode the mare to accumulate 25 points for the rosette while Miss Betts Nashem's Hydro-Fashion was reserve.

Miss Jean Cochran took home the Greenwich, Ox Ridge and Fairfield Challenge Trophy for working hunters, other than Thoroughbreds. Having won the trophy at Greenwich in 1949 and at Ox Ridge the same year, My Chance's winning performance at Greenwich this year retired the trophy.

The major highlight was the protest in the $350 open jumper stake. The complaint came just as George Braun was finishing the course on the eventual winner, Llangollen Farm's grey Carry Me Back. The protest fee was immediately filed and then a petition was circulated among the exhibitors. The protest was that "artificial aids" had been used in the form of persons outside the ring cracking whips or beating on the fence to speed up the grey. The outcome of the protest was not available.

At the conclusion of the stake, Mrs. Don J. Ferraro's Black Watch had 17 points and on this basis was named champion. Angel, owned by Mrs. J. A. Wigmore, had 14 points for reserve. However, if Carry Me Back was ruled out under the protest, George FitzPatrick's grey Party Miss would move into 2nd place in the stake and the extra point would tie her with Angel.

The jumper stake course had 9 jumps 4'-0" to 5'-0". The hardest obstacles were three wrapped poles set in series with the final bar set at approximately 5'-0". The other two were about three notches down. Only 3 horses cleared this triple barrier, among them being Carry Me Back which cleared the 5'-0" one with several inches of clear space and had but 3 1-2 faults in the class. —Contributed by Jo Chapman, Chronicle Correspondent.

HORSEMANSHIP CLUB SPRING MEET

The opening event of the spring season in Montreal, Canada was the small show run by the Horsemanship Club Branch of the Pony Club. As all profits were to go towards Pony Club expenses for the forthcoming Inter-City Rally, it was suggested that the juniors take over the show. This they did, and most efficiently, putting on a well balanced program for seniors and juniors, and doing all the work themselves.

The only side-saddle rider, Mrs. J. C. Kemp, won the senior equitation and was presented with her cup by the youngest participant, her granddaughter, Miss Leslie Dillingham, nearly 3 years of age.

Working hunters was won by Mrs. A. T. Paterson's Bowman's Wood ridden by Mrs. R. R. MacDougall. The MacDougall family was very much in evidence that day as Miss Honor MacDougall won the lead line class in the morning. —Contributed by Pamela Dillingham, Chronicle Correspondent.

IRON BRIDGE HUNT HORSE SHOW

A rather unusual case of history repeating itself happened at the Iron Bridge Hunt Horse Show held at Burtonsville, Md. on May 30. Claude W. Owen's Sky's Shadow and Dr. John R. Keeler's Wood Secret were champion hunter and champion jumper respectively last year. When they lined up this year, the order was the same.

Last year Mrs. Margaret Aitchison Reisinger's chestnut mare, Wye, was among the broodmare ranks with a foal. At the Iron Bridge show this year she won the Maurice F. Lanigan Memorial working hunter class over 28 other entries.

The veteran Black Caddy, with Owner Fred Hughes up, was reserve open jumper champion. This stallion, which had a sojourn with the Mexican Army Horse Show Team while his owner was overseas, is breaking in a new rider, the Hughes' small daughter Robin. Robin rode Black Caddy bareback out of the ring after the horse had been pinned in one of his classes.

Happy Girl, Stable Brothers' winner of the heavyweight race at the Redland Hunt Point-to-Point a few years back, added further laurels to her career of racing and producing several foals. At Iron Bridge she was reserve hunter champion.—Contributed by Conrad Shamel, Chronicle Correspondent.

KNOX SCHOOL SPRING HORSE SHOW

A variety of horsemanship events made the Knox School Riding Club's spring horse an interesting event for juniors when it was held May 13 at Cooperstown, N. Y. In the special awards division, Miss Claudia Wright won the Equestrienne Supremacy Perpetual Challenge Trophy awarded to the member who, throughout the year, has shown the greatest skill and achievement in handling horses.

Miss Wright was in the ring again as reserve champion for points accumulated during the show. She was pinned behind the champion, Miss Sylvia Pinchbeck.

LAKE FOREST HORSE SHOW

The Lake Forest Horse Show, at the Onwentsia Club Stables in Lake Forest, Ill., officially opened the Chicago area season in a large cloud-burst when the show started on June 2 to go through the 4th. The elimination for the novice open jumper, scheduled for Friday morning (so well filled were the classes) had to be cancelled and the lightweight working hunters found themselves plowing around in the mud and rain to start the show in the afternoon. "Chivalry is not dead", murmured a spectator as Judge Pirie lifted Judge Prime high in his arms and carried her gallantly across the sea of mud to the center of the ring.

Old Man Weather failed to dampen the spirits of either exhibitors or their very good friends, the horses, as the performances, on the whole, were surprisingly consistent and careful. It rained again Friday night and left the ring well saturated for Saturday. Horses had that "Shall I leap, or slither?" look as they sallied forth once more. By Sunday the footing was good, the sun bright and warmer and all was well. Show manager Wally Wakem came out from under his scowl, donned his tweeds and smiled.

Atakapa, the veteran brown campaigner, now showing under the colors of August A. Busch, Jr., proved himself the worthy hunter champion. Chilly Belle, the nice young bay mare of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Horowitz, went consistently on her way to reserve. Chilly is a Virginia-bred mare and has a nice easy way of fencing.

Cheers came from the Mill Creek Hunt contingent as Mrs. Edward Spalding's good hunting and good showing bay Timber Dot was pinned working hunter champion. Mrs. Jeanne Denley's brown gelding, Birchwood was reserve. Mrs. Denley, it was understood, was busily commuting between Milwaukee and Lake Forest during the show but managed to give a good account of herself with her Birchwood and Lightland (as well as covering the Milwaukee event for The Chronicle).

Highlights of the show: The return of the ring of Mrs. Pat Bolling Harding and her bay Velveteen mare. Pat's legs and hands were a treat to watch as she turned in one, lovely round after another on Arthur Reynolds' Capt. Shawl, Carey Rogers' good hunting Dusty Brown, etc.

Big, black Congo, his usual brilliant self, winning the middle-heavy working with Del Carroll, the polo player, doing a capable job in the saddle.

Paul Oliver's brown mare Twinkle, winning the open working hunters with Arthur Reynolds "carrying the mail".

There two lovely chestnuts of the Andrew Shinkles, Drew and Your Beau, that caught the eye at Oak Brook last year as 3-year-olds, proving they have developed well by garnering ribbons.

The flashy chestnut Capt. Fritz Bay, having attended a bit of high school, deciding to settle down for Owner-rider Miss Salli Hawkins and thereby garnered the corinthian. Miss Hawkins' eager, handsome little bay heaver, Copperfield, gave her a nice win in the ladies.

Out of little sportswomen good ones grow and wee Susie, aged 7, and Judy Coffin, her sister, aged 10, certainly had lesson number one. They suddenly found themselves eligible for the children's preliminary championship—to ride against the 17-year-olds—about half an hour before the class. (Ponies and clothes 40 miles away as mother did not read the program thoroughly). A mad scamper for borrowed clothing and borrowed horseflesh and in they went, Susie saying, "if she didn't keep her heels way, way down, the borrowed shoes would fall off".—Contributed by Blondie, Chronicle Correspondent.

MILWAUKEE SPRING HORSE SHOW

The annual Milwaukee Spring Horse Show was held at the Wisconsin State Fair Park Coliseum on June 2-3-4. Because of Lake Forest's show being held the same days, the Milwaukee event was a little short of hunters and jumpers.

The knock-down-and-out class had three clean performances and H. R. McRose placed 1st and 2nd with One Three and Crediton and came right back in the touch and out to be scored 1st, 2nd and 3rd. A final go-round for the McRose stable was the 1st in the jumper stake and 2nd in the hunter stake by One Three with Crediton picking up 4th in the latter stake.—Contributed by Jeanne Denley, Chronicle Correspondent.

NEWARK KIWANIS CLUB HORSE SHOW

Before the hunt meeting moves onto Foxcatcher Farms at Fair Hill, Maryland in the fall, the grounds are used by the Newark Kiwanis Club for a horse show. This year the date was May 20 but no one mentioned whether working hunters used the new timber course to get in some extra schooling.

Pennsylvania entries took over the conformation hunter honors as the big grey Tanahmerah and Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Charles B. Lyman annexed the tri-color ahead of Bet-Peg Stable's Kaywoodie. Among the jumpers, Miss M. Phyllis Lose's Casadol chalked up the greatest number of points with Edward Mooney's Pickwick reserve.

Miss Betty Jane Baldwin's Brandywine was in the foremost position among the working hunters to walk off with the championship and Tanahmerah added the reserve honor to his tri-color in the conformation ranks.

NO. WESTCHESTER CHAPTER PHA HORSE SHOW

The 6th annual P. H. A. (Northern Westchester Chapter) Show was held May 28 at Meadow Lane Farm, North Salem, N. Y. As show settings go, a more interesting view could scarce be found than Carlo Paterno's beautiful race course, a short distance from the show grounds. Admiring remarks from all sides attested to this fact as well as plaudits for the footing which was favorable on the outside course as well as in the ring.

One of the busiest riders of the show was Miss Nancy Clapp, riding the Hutchinson Farms entries. Left with time on her hands for the children's jumper class, she took over Mrs. John Bell's Bedford Belle, never having seen the mare before, and was awarded the blue after three jump offs. Riding in the A. H. S. A. medal hunter seat, Miss Clapp annexed another blue ahead of Miss Norah Hawkins.

For the second year the Col. William Henderson Challenge Trophy for ladies' hunters was won by Sun Guard, owned and ridden by Miss Betty Haight. Sun Guard went on to garner the hunter tri-color ahead of Hutchinson Farms' Passing By. The same order prevailed for champion and reserve in the miscellaneous division awarded to horses qualifying in the children's and hack classes. To resolve any doubt, Judge William Johnston rode both horses before the championship was pinned.

Raymond H. Lutz' Sheik of Albrurae and Albrurae's Popover dominated the open jumper division and the tri-colors were pinned in the same order.—Contributed by Nancy Caffrey, Chronicle Correspondent.

OAKS HUNT HORSE SHOW

The Oaks Hunt Horse Show, held May 28 at Greentree, Manhasset, N. Y., was one of the most successful that the organization has held in recent years.

With a hard working committee behind it, the show went along smoothly and finished the last class in time to grant Arthur Nardin's request to hold a special Olympic jumping class. Half the entry fees of the class went to the Olympic Horse Show Fund.

While colorful classes in the hunter division such as the competition for The Masters Trophy and The Oaks Hunt Challenge Trophy, held spectators' attention, the jumper division with a contingent from Squadron A and the New York City Continued on Page 7

Police Department gave local and out of town exhibitors plenty of competition.

OUTLAND'S STABLE SHOW

The 3rd Annual Outland's Stable Junior Horsemanship Show took place May 20 at Birmingham, Mich. Over 130 youngsters participated.

The children ranged in age from 5 to 17 years. In the classes for horsemanship, the riders were grouped not only by age but also by their relative capacities and the progress they have made.

Miss Violet Hopkins is introducing horsemanship to the younger riders. In the advanced horsemanship class, her pupils and those of Z. Outland were asked to execute some of the beginning dressage work they have been studying.

The show closed with the annual competition for the Outland Junior Drill Team Trophy.—Contributed by Mrs. B. W. Ziessow, Chronicle Correspondent.

OXEN HILL HORSE AND PONY SHOW

The Oxen Hill Horse and Pony Show was held May 28 on Z. Vance Hicks' estate near Oxen Hill, Md. When the hunter points were added up, Charles Carrico's owner-ridden Sea Puss had accumulated 13 against C. N. France's Timbrooke which had 6.

Points in the jumper division were closer but Mrs. L. E. Estes' Watch Me had clear sailing with 8 points while Sgt. Joe Owen's Black Jack and Tommy Jones' Half Moon tied with 6 each.

Miss Barbara Gardner's Duke chalked up the pony championship and nosed out Miss Alice Toothman's General Mac.—Contributed by Bruce Fales, Jr., Chronicle Correspondent.

PALOS VERDES CHILDREN'S HORSE SHOW

The 8th annual Palos Verdes (Calif.) Children's Horse Show on May 27 came to a close with no damage to any rider, spectator or horse, although numerous hot dogs met the fate prescribed by their makers.

The advanced horsemanship class of this show is the most difficult class of any of the children's shows on the Pacific Coast as it includes many different evolutions and also jumping (with and without saddle). Miss Mary Anne Moore won the special trophy for this class which was donated by "Mac" MacDonald and will carry the winner's name every year.

It is always amazing the skill that many of the "8 and under" riders show. This year Miss Patty Gillian was definitely on top. In the 16 and under horsemanship, hunter seat, again Miss Mary Anne Moore chalked up the blue.

In addition to the Palos Verdes and Rolling Hills riders, children from Leo Dupee stables, E. B. Green's, Roy Traylor's, Rosalind Johnson's and other fine riders from the Los Angeles, Beverly Hills and Pasadena areas were on hand. After the show was over, Captain Fred Egan remarked that in all except the very youngest classes, he had had to use adult standards to differentiate the five best riders for the ribbons in each class.—Contributed by Don Amigo, Chronicle Correspondent.

VASSAR SPRING HORSE SHOW

From rain to sun was the schedule for the Vassar Spring Horse Show held at Greenvale Farms, Poughkeepsie, N. Y. on May 20. Bennett took over in the hunter division as Miss Hedda von Goeben rode John M. Melville's Duke in for the championship and Miss Ann Fryllis, also of Bennett, was reserve on F. H. Bontecue's Loose Leaf.

Miss Mary Gilman of Vassar won double honors as she was pinned champion rider ahead of Miss Polly Talbott (Vassar) and then was awarded the Vassar Champion Rider trophy. This trophy is presented to the Vassar girl which, in the opinion of the judges, has shown the best horsemanship throughout the show.—Contributed by Dacie Marshall, Chronicle Correspondent.

WATCHUNG RIDING AND DRIVING CLUB HORSE SHOW

Rubber boots were very much in evidence at the 24th annual Watchung Riding and Driving Club Horse Show held at the Watchung Stables, Summit, N. J. on June 3-4. The skies opened on Saturday night but luckily the sun came out about noon on Sunday, but not before the damage had been done and turned the show grounds into a sea of mud.

Miss Dorothy Ritterbush's Frosty Morning and Miss Marjorie Braverman's Lucky Lady waded through the outside course to tie for working hunter honors. After hacking it off, Frosty Morning annexed the tricolor with Lucky Lady reserve.

Don Mitchell, who hasn't been around the shows in some time, came along and took home the jumper championship with his Handspring. Cappamore, owned by Michael Ryan and ridden by Joe Hill, was reserve.

Something which doesn't happen all the time is to have the hunter seat and the saddle seat championships won by the same junior. Miss Carol Jean Kruse did this job well and Skipper Schroeder came along to be reserve in both divisions. Miss Kruse, who just recently started riding hunter seat, showed her young Thoroughbred Bow Spin, to win several ribbons in the hack classes behind Miss Norah Hawkins' Charmante.

One of the more interesting classes was the open jumping (F. E. I. Rules) which had the last four jumps set diagonally across the center of the ring. Miss Barbara Fyfe's Aw Shucks won the class with the only clean round.—Jane Eyre, Chronicle Correspondent.

Aqueduct's First Week Shows Small But Persistent Increase; Ted Atkinson Rides Fifth Winner of Shevlin

Joe H. Palmer

Aqueduct's first week must have cheered the management considerably. It showed a small but persistent increase over the 1949 figures, and would have shown a much larger one except that several days were cloudy, rainy, or cold. To get statistical about it, the first week's attendance was 122,324, and these customers obligingly put $9,464,442 in the kitty. Last year the first week, which had clear weather every day, had 120,555 good horseplayers and true, and the handle was $9,398,130. On four of the six days, the 1950 figures were up, in both departments, and the other two were marked by a vicious sort of weather. I haven't the slightest idea why this should be, unless, as has been tentatively hoped here before, matters have levelled off, and the heavy New York taxation had, last year, brought the addicts to an irreducible minimum.

I wish I could report that the racing had showed a slight improvement, too, but it didn't. There were three flat race stakes during the week, and one over the fences, and these were well enough, though I thought the Shevlin might have attracted more. Aside from these, I have seen just about as good horses at River Downs. Maybe this is an exaggeration, but not by much.

As exhibit A, I take the Friday card, on which a total of $24,500 was distributed. There were six claiming races, and the best horse in any of them could have been claimed for $7,500. The majority could have been had for $4,000 or under. There was a maiden 2-year-old filly race, and while next year's Oaks winner might have been in the field I doubt it very much. The remaining race was for 3-year-olds which had not won a race of $2,950. The press box was desperately trying to figure how to get enough out of this to make up from 600 to 800 words in a newspaper, when Bobby Permane thoughtfully rode his first winner since his bad accident in March, 1949, and got a tremendous reception by the crowd, thus furnishing a "lead" to which other items could be hooked.

Three Rings, owned by Mrs. E. L. Hopkins, ran the best race I've ever seen from him to win the Queens County Handicap on opening day. He won the race last year, too, and it is a mark of how far he's come that he had 110 pounds in 1949, while this year he was the top of the handicap at 126. He likes a dry track—he was scratched from the Suburban because the going was only "good"—and he got one for the Queens County. He set off in front, as he usually does, and led into Aqueduct's long stretch. There Jockey E. Arcaro pulled Mount Marcy out and took dead aim on him. The Whitney colt, running up behind a surge, went into the lead with a surge, and with a 7-pound pull and Jockey Arcaro at the controls, it looked like he was home. But Three Rings fought back like a bull pup and won by 3-4 of a length. Usually when you pass a front runner he stays passed; but this one has grit.

Three Rings, as you may know, was bred by J. S. Phipps, and made one start for him at 3 finishing unplaced. He was then sold privately to Mrs. Hopkins, and passed to the hands of Willie Knapp, best known for his Upset upset and some dealings with Exterminator. Three Rings was a fair investment as a 3-year-old, but it was not until last year, at 4, that he got really good. Now he's won $191,650. He's by Blue Larkspur, most of whose get were more likely to distinguish themselves at 2 and 3 than at 4 and 5. He was the first foal of Circus Ring, a "Bull Dog" mare which raced only once, unplaced.

The Queens County was not the only stakes of the week in which Jockey Arcaro could account himself safely home only to be passed at the end. The Shevlin Stakes, it seemed to me, drew a rather weak field. Mrs. Andy Schuttlinger's Ferd seemed much the best of it, even though he had 123 pounds to 116 on Navy Chief and 112 on the others. He had, for instance, won the Jersey Stakes on May 30, giving weight to the other placed horses, and he was in fact the only starter which had won a stakes race this year. Navy Chief was the only other which had won a stakes at all—he won the Great American last season—and he hasn't been up to much this year.

Ferd and Jockey Arcaro trailed along behind Hyphasis and Fabricate and put them away when it came time, just as you'd think. In the upper stretch he had a clear lead, and there seemed to be nothing coming. Ted Atkinson, exercising commendable patience, had let C. V. Whitney's Dooly run 6th to the top of the stretch, and even then he waited a sixteenth before setting him down. The result was remarkable, for Dooly, which had finished 8th in the Jersey, came with a bold rush at the end and won by 1 1-2 lengths, Ferd 2nd, Fabricate 3rd. It was, incidentally, the fifth time Jockey Atkinson has won the Shevlin.

Before this Dooly had done nothing remarkable, except run 3rd in the Preakness. Even that wasn't much, aside from his stablemate, Mr. Trouble, which sprawled in the bad going, there wasn't a lot to be

Syracuse Lad Wins Hurdle Stake

John M. Schiff's Phiblant Wins Tom Roby Steeplechase, Delaware Park's Opening Infield Event; H. Harris Receives Trophy

William Jaeger

John M. Schiff's Phiblant is one up on Rigan McKinney's Hot in their personal feud this season.

Prior to the 4th running of the Tom Roby Steeplechase Stakes at Delaware Park on June 12, things were all tied up between the two jumpers.

Phiblant had conquered Hot in an overnight handicap early in the Belmont Park meet but the latter came back to run 2nd to Adaptable in the Corinthian Steeplechase Handicap while Phiblant was a badly beaten last.

In the Tom Roby, which opened the steeplechase season at spacious Delaware Park, Phiblant coasted home by 4 lengths to whip Oak Spring Stable's Sgt. Peace easily while Hot cooled off considerably and had to be content with 5th place among the 7 starters.

The Roby, named after the steeplechase jockey who has been hospitalized since 1942 after falling from Bayard Sharp's Knight's Quest in New York, is the probably the only race of its kind in the country since the winning rider and not the owner or trainer, receives a trophy for his efforts. Mr. Sharp, a director of the Delaware Steeplechase and Race Association, the host organization, donates the trophy and this time it went to Harry Harris who gave Phiblant a powerful ride after a very bad landing at the 2nd brush in which the son of *Challenger 2nd—*Lola Montez 2nd almost went down.

Hot, favorite at the betting windows, was with the pace from the start although he had considerable trouble with Herbert Dunn's Leche Hombre which managed to stay just a slight bit ahead of him all the way until clearing the 11th brush where Robert McDonald sent Hot to the front. Phiblant, meanwhile, had recovered from his early mishap and was lodged in 3rd position as Hot took the pace. Between the 12th and 13th obstacles, Jockey Harris gave Phiblant the nod and the big bay gelding bounded to the front to remain there for the rest of the trip as Hot faded and Sgt. Peace was brought along by Jockey D. Marzani to offer a challenge which wasn't serious by any means. Leche Hombre also tired badly but took 4th money as C. Mahlon Kline's *Tolbiac came on to be 3rd.

Mrs. Esther duPont Weir, the Wilmington sportswoman who races Thoroughbreds on the flat and through the field, had a strangle hold on the current Delaware Park meet on June 13.

Trainer Jim Ryan slapped saddles on Mrs. Weir's entry of The Mast and *Sauchlehall and the pair came bounding home 1-2 in the about a mile and 6 furlongs hurdle event.

The Mast, content to allow his stablemate to cut out the pace, took over just past the final hurdle and drew out to win by 2 lengths. *Sauchlehall was an increasing 10 lengths over C. Mahlon Kline's Easter Vigil, the even money choice which had racked up 4 straight triumphs at hunt meets this spring before swallowing the pill of defeat on this occasion.

Mrs. Simon T. Patterson's Elmont was 4th and Justin Funkhouser's Auftakt, a German-bred, 5th and last. A. Heston Hanna's Gritty Duke a 10-year-old maiden which hadn't been to the post since Sept. 10, 1942, at Timonium, was in the starting field but faded badly after showing early foot and finally lost Jockey Richard Gough at the 8th hurdle following a bad landing.

The Mast, under 130 pounds, was ridden by Jockey R. Coleman. The turf again was fast and The Mast required 3.01 2-5 for the route. The race was named for Howard W. Clements, the jumping rider who lost his life during World War II.

Farm to Farm

Brookmeade Farm Will Sell Eight Yearlings At Saratoga Yearling Sales and Fourteen Broodmares To Be Sold Privately

SPRINGSBURY

There are two very outstanding yearlings in the consignment of six belonging to Mrs. George P. Greenhaigh, Berryville, Va., which will be sold at Saratoga this summer. One is a Jim Ryan special, or a Burling Cocks, or a Sid Watters, for that matter, as he has all the ear marks of becoming a champion through the field. He will probably make a liar out of me and run like the devil on the flat. Anyway, he is a big colt, with a lot of quality. By Case Ace—Sally Port, by War Hero, he should command a bit of respect from the aforementioned gentlemen, come sales time. The other colt is out of Busher's half-sister, Betteefarlee, by Star Beacon, which is one of *Blenheim II's sons whose progeny are entering various winner's circles. This particular colt is a well balanced individual, and seems to have some of that indefinable something we call "class". As these colts are of different types, of which each excels, Mrs. Greenhaigh is mighty proud to have them in her consignment.

BROOKMEADE FARM

It was only a short while ago that Brookmeade Farm, in Upperville, Va. announced that their good stallion By Jimminy would stand in Kentucky for the season of 1951. The latest news from this famous farm is that fourteen broodmares will be sold privately; also eight yearlings will be consigned at Saratoga for the sale at the Spa.

Most any horseman, who has been in the business very long, will lament "poor culling" and what he means is; he picked the wrong horse to be sold. The individual went on to become a good, hard hitting race horse, or turned out to be a good producer. A farm as large as Brookmeade cannot possibly keep all of the stock it raises year after year, consequently some selling has to be done in order to keep the farm from continuous expansion. When such an occasion arises it is sometimes very beneficial to the small breeder to pick up one of these selections, as it could very well be one of these "poor culls".

Included in this tentative group of mares to be sold, is an 11-year-old Blue Larkspur mare, named Bavardia. She had her first foal in 1944, which grew to become a winner of six races. Her second foal arrived in 1945 and was also a winner. Not just a winner of one race; in 1949 she (Harmony Hope), was in the money 9 times, 6 wins and earned $10,300. Bavardia was bar-ren for the next three seasons, but produced a nice bay filly by Star Beacon in 1949. This year she had a foal by First Fiddle and was bred back to Grand Admiral. Because she was barren for three years, she has had only two foals to get to the races, and both have been winners.

Bright Destiny, a 7-year-old *Gino mare, out of Sun Destiny, by *Sun Briar, was unraced, and of the three live foals she has had, the oldest is 2, therefore, it would be slightly difficult, to say the least, to forecast just how good a producer she will be. Sun Destiny is out of *Phaona, by Phalaris, and is the dam of Lucky Devil, winner of over $15,000.

Princess Alice, br. 1933, by *Teddy—Free and Easy, by *Chicle, has been the kind of broodmare all breeders are in the hopes of owning. She produced the stakes winner The Heir by *Gino; Blue Sash, by Granville, which placed in stakes, also the winners Black Magic, Tzaritsa, Royal Wand, Lady Alice, and The Peer. The last five named were all winners at 2.

The remaining mares on the list to be sold are:

Royal Wand, br. 1945, by Halberd—Princess Alice, by *Teddy.

Rush East, br. 1945, by *Easton—Rash Hurry, by John P. Grier.

Smiles, br. 1939, by High Quest—Kawita, by *Donnacona.

Star Bound, ch. 1941, by Haste—Journeys End, by *Spanish Prince II.

Sun Monia, b. 1938, by *Sun Briar—Gamonia, by Fair Play.

Yarrow Maid, ch. 1938, by Cavalcade—Milfoil, by *Vulcan.

Flota, ch. 1937, by Jack High—Armada, by Man o'War.

Glittery, b. 1941, by Cavalcade—Light Brocade, by The Porter.

Nutmeg Lass, br. 1938, by Cavalcade—Queen Herod, by Tetratema.

Spicy Dish, br. 1947, by By Jimminy—Nutmeg Lass, by Cavalcade.

Malcontent, b. 1947, by Star Beacon—Little Rebel, by John P. Grier.

The Saratoga consignment consists of the following yearlings:

B. f., by Star Beacon—Bavardia

B. f., by Grand Admiral—Glittery

B. c., by Equistone—Smiles

B. f., by *Easton—Star Bound

Ch. c., by Shut Out—Bright Destiny

B. c., by *Piping Rock—Riskless

B. f., by Bimelech—Psychist

Br. f., by By Jimminy—Katylea

These are an even bunch of yearlings, well taken care of, that have grown up the way yearlings should under like conditions. But here again, where you race and sell, it is very hard to select the ones to keep, or sell, because you always have the feeling that you are letting the wrong ones go. For instance, take the br. f., by By Jimminy—Katylea, by Bull Lea, (and who wouldn't!). This is Katylea's first foal, and a grand individual it is. However, Mrs. Sloane owns By Jimminy and if this one turns out to be a world beater, she can always breed back to By Jimminy. The reverse of that is also true, she may breed back to him ten times and never come up with another good one—so it goes in the horse game. Everyone in it is bound to do some "poor culling".

NEWSTEAD

Mr. and Mrs. Taylor Hardin of Upperville, are in the process of building a half-dozen new box stalls to take care of the accumulation of breeding stock that seems to be rapidly increasing. This new construction is of cinder block and the footing for each box stall is a mixture of stone and concrete, so it will be as near rat proof as possible. Mr.

Hardin is head contractor, carpenter, mason, and what have you, while the Missus seems to be the construction boss. They are both having fun with the building of it, and the least excuse, such as some one dropping in to see the foals, yearlings, or broodmares, is reason enough for Mrs. Hardin to relax from her garden or household pleasures to see how much more has been accomplished with the building than was accomplished an hour previously.

Every mare at Newstead is out of a stakes winner, or a stakes producer, and from these mares there will be four yearlings sold at Saratoga. They include a br. c., by Chalcadon—Off Gold; b. c., by Jeep—Vertigo; ch. f., by Jamestown—Curfew; and a ch. f. by Maxim—New Flower. Four good yearlings that are typical of the stock which have been their predecessors at Newstead.

Mid-West Artist Paints Some Gold For Paul Butler

Paul Butler's Some Gold, on the cover of The Chronicle this week, is a timber horse of sterling qualities. A western bred individual, by Gold Bug—Multaeon, by *Multorb, he seems to have unusual stamina and soundness matched with a rare ability to jump big and consistently over all types of timber fences. The Maryland Hunt Cup fences caused him no more trouble this year than did Middleburg's stout Glendale Park fences last year and he is always just knocking at the door against the top eastern competition while on the mid-west circuit he has proved himself the outstanding timber contender.

The picture was painted by a 22 year old artist at Hinsdale, Jane Llewellyn Ott who is planning a career of painting, being an associate artist member of the Chicago Galleries Association. Her painting of Some Gold was inspired by seeing the horse work on his home grounds in Oak Brook and after admiring the big, free manner in which "Old Lop" took his fences. Miss Ott has been able to get much of the big, strong way of going characteristic of Some Gold in her painting. It shows Hank Helgesen up who rode Some Gold in most of his races last year and who was responsible for developing Mr. Butler's timber horse into one of the outstanding jumpers in the country.

Miss Ott has recently purchased a farm in Charlottesville, Virginia and plans to spend her time there this summer working over her painting and completing work she has already been commissioned to do.

Some Gold's record is interesting and is worthy of comment for he has narrowly missed in the last two years becoming the leading timber horse not only in the mid-west but in the east as well, showing in each of his races a fine honesty and will to run, coupled with a most consistent jumping ability. His eastern record this year consisted of a 2nd in the King Haglar, 3rd in the Carolina Cup, 3rd in the Virginia Gold Cup, 3rd in the Louie Leith and 3rd in the Maryland Hunt Cup.

Hardin is head contractor, carpenter, mason, and what have you, while the Missus seems to be the construction boss. They are both having fun with the building of it, and the least excuse, such as some one dropping in to see the foals, yearlings, or broodmares, is reason enough for Mrs. Hardin to relax from her garden or household pleasures to see how much more has been accomplished with the building than was accomplished an hour previously.

Bright Camp was selected as an outstanding hunter sire to produce top conformation horses, and his bloodlines have been tested and found superior, not only in the show ring, but also on the race course. Line-bred to Fair Play, Bright Camp thus carries the blood of such as Battleship, Genie, War Hero and Dress Parade in the top line which, combined with that of *Wrack on the dam's side gives him the best possible qualifications to get good jumpers.

Irish-Bred Kipper Wins Hitchcock

Jones-Trained Gelding Beats Good Field of Six At Belmont; Oedipus Wins Aqueduct Spring Maiden For Bostwicks

Spectator

An Irish-bred gelding that was imported by Jim Ryan for Mrs. Marion du Pont Scott in 1946, and then subsequently sold to M. Andrew Cushman and William G. Jones, proved to be the hero of the $10,000 added Hitchcock Steeplechase Handicap. *Kipper was cut out to be a nice kind of a horse, but unfortunately an unsound one, and was reportedly sold by Mrs. Scott for $400 early in 1949. Last year he won two hurdle races under claiming conditions, then went on to win three brush races before the year was over. Only a week ago, he won a claiming steeplechase at Belmont, and could have been had for $4,000, but when a twenty-four hour rain before the Hitchcock turned the infield into a sodden mass, Trainer Billy Jones started *Kipper against the formidable Adaptable, Navigate, Monkey Wrench, Floating Isle and Lock and Key. At the finish, *Kipper held the advantage by a length and a quarter, with Navigate another two and a quarter lengths in front of Monkey Wrench, while two lengths back, Adaptable, the mud horse, could do no better than fourth, dropping way out of it in the early stages, and then making a belated bid in the last half mile which fell six lengths short of the winning spot.

Lock and Key, making her 1950 debut took the lead shortly after the break and held it until the last fence on the far side, the second time around where she bobbed while *Kipper and Navigate went by her in that order. Around the turn, Melvin Ferral on the mare, was either not able to get to the front again, nor did he take back, with the result that Lock and Key took the first jump in the front field on the quarters of *Kipper and Navigate, where she fell. Meanwhile, Tommy Field on *Kipper increased his lead slightly as he turned into the far side the last time, with Navigate the only horse close enough to be a contender. However in the closing stages, Monkey Wrench and Adaptable both closed some ground but were never dangerous. At the last fence, *Kipper had a three length advantage, and had to be ridden out to withstand Navigate's rush from the last fence home.

*Kipper was held as second choice in the betting off his previous win last week at Belmont, and paid $7.10 to win. His time for the two and a half miles, was 5:01 4-5, more than ten seconds off the track record.

Monday, June 12 saw the opening of Aqueduct, and the hurdle race that afternoon provided the setting for G. H. (Pete) Bostwick to break his "maiden" over the jumps this year. The winning performer was *Uncle Sam who has been a hard hitting contender in any company when the mood strikes him. In this race, *Uncle Sam ran with a claiming tag of $4,500, and crossed the wire for an easy three length win, with R. Belanger in the saddle. Runner-up was Irl Daffin's Crayon, a length to the good of Fonda, who closed a lot of ground in the closing stages of this mile and a half race and ran down *Diable de Gosse, Escarp and Chariotier from the last hurdle to the wire.

Aqueduct's infield race on Tuesday was a brush race designed as a prep for the Spring Maiden to be run on the second Monday, and it must have pleased Trainer Pete Bostwick and his sister, Mrs. Ogden Phipps, for Oedipus, the winner crossed the wire some twenty lengths in front of his opposition. In his first start this year over the big ones, he pulled himself up, then two more starts, each of the latter over hurdles, brought improvement to this four-year-old son of Blue Larkspur—Be Like Mom. In the race here at Aqueduct, James Smiley was in the pilot's seat, and went to the front soon after the start, fenced well, and increased his lead as the race progressed to be an easy winner in 3:46 1-5, a little less than five seconds off the record. A real battle for place developed, with three horses coming to the last fence closely bunched. In the drive to the wire, *Le Buis Fleuri had a slight edge to get place call by a neck in front of Port Raider, with Crooning Wind taking down fourth money after *Gift of Gold flattened out in the stretch drive. Brookmeade Stables' Dare All, a first time starter over jumps, ran closest to the pace in this race for more than a turn of the field, but dropped out of it after a serious bobble. Marshal Ney, another first time starter trailed the field, and appeared to have bucked shins when he was unsaddled.

The following day, Bayard Tuckerman, Jr.'s Joe Hogan, a horse which seemed destined for brackets in several previous races, came home on the top end by a three length margin under a nicely judged ride from Harry Harris. His time for the mile and a half over hurdles was 2:46 1-5, three fifths better than *Uncle Sam's race on Monday. Joe Hogan is a four-year-old by Bolingbroke—Stimulate and is trained by Oleg T. Dubassoff. A three-year-old from the Sanford Stud Farms was runner-up, and showed some improvement from his first start over hurdles at Belmont several weeks ago.

A cheap field of hurdlers went postward on Friday at a mile and a half designed for non-winners of $1,200 twice, with the favorite, I. Bieber's *Diable de Gosse the winner by six and a half lengths. Crows Bill was next and Crayon and Janies Fellah taking down third and fourth money in that order. This was the first victory for *Diable de Gosse in this country. He is a winner of several races in France, and was claimed by Bieber last year at Belmont, but broke down in the running of that race, and was sent to Jack Skinner's farm in Middleburg to be patched up.

Delaware Park 'Chasing

The Mast was 3rd early as first Gritty Duke and then Easter Vigil occupied the runner-up spot. He moved into 2nd place coming to the 8th obstacle and then grabbed the lead a furlong from home. Easter Vigil tired through the final stages. He was 15 lengths clear of Elmont in the competition for 3rd position.

Auburn Farm's Syracuse Lad, a 3-year-old bay colt by Brazado-Perigree, by *Sir Gallahad III, carried his owner's colors into the winner's circle at Delaware Park on June 16. Syracuse Lad, winner of one race in 4 previous outings this season, left in his wake Brooks Parker's *Wunderprinz and C. M. Kline's *Rialto. *Rialto won the Belmont Park running of the 3-race series of the National Maiden Hurdle Stake.

Jockey C. H. Williams sent Syracuse Lad to the front at the start but dropped back off the pace as Mrs. E. duPont Weir's *Sauchiehall took over the pace. *Sauchiehall was well up on the pace when he lost Jockey J. Snyder at the 8th. Around the final turn, Happy Hill Farm's Marcheast fell and James C. Brady's Boom Boom fell over him. To avoid the fallen horses, Jockey E. Carter took F. A. Clark's Greens Keeper off the course.

Over the 9th and last hurdle, Syracuse Lad and *Rialto jumped on even terms but the Auburn Farm color-bearer drew away in the stretch drive as *Wunderprinz came on to place ahead of *Rialto.

hind him. He had soft footing in the Shevlin, too, and apparently he isn't too tough without it.

He's by Eight Thirty, out of an Equipoise mare named Dipsy Doodle. She's a half-sister to Handcuff, but won only one race herself. The best of her other foals are Daily Dip, which won the Myrtlewood Stakes in 1948, and Jazz Baby, which is currently racing with some success for the Whitney stable.

It's hard to freeze Jockey Arcaro completely out, however, and he took the Tremont on George D. Widener's Battlefield, which I suppose is the best 2-year-old to show this season with the possible exception of King Ranch's Black Douglas. The latter set a world record for 4 1-2 furlongs in his only start to date, but Battlefield has won 5 of his 6 starts. The only one he lost was the Juvenile, and he was beaten by a Florida-bred, so there had to be something flukey about it.

He's by War Relic—Dark Display, by Display, and Mr. Widener paid $4,500 for him at Saratoga last summer. Didn't waste much time, either; the colt was No. 23 in the catalog. The mare hadn't done anything, hadn't produced anything. She has now.

Letters To the Editor

the Army Horse Show Team, both officers and horses, left Fort Riley and its heat in June to spend the summer training period at Fort Robinson, Nebraska where the altitude gives a cool climate. It was customary to give on Labor Day an exhibition of longeing, jumping, and sometimes dressage, following the showing of the choicest breeding stock.

The exhibition was held on the smooth sod of the parade ground, which was "fenced" with bales of bright straw laid end to end. Cars parked against this fence and spectators could sit on the straw bales or in their cars. Fine old cottonwood trees lined the avenue to the north, behind which one could glimpse the officers' stately white houses. The setting was beautiful, informal, charming, and one was so close to the performer, which means so much. When living in Wyoming there was never any doubt about where to go on Labor Day—I went to Fort Robinson of course.

Some time in September the horses were shipped back to Fort Riley, and in October the Olympic Trials were held, and, as I understood it, both horses and men were graded, and upon these points the final selections were made for the actual Olympic Team. Though they knew (in that fall of 1939) that the Olympic Games would not be held in 1940, the Trials were held so that the officers might know how they stood after their summer's work. It would not be surprising if all of Gordon Russell's six were adjudged worthy of places on the final Team, but, unfortunately, I do not know.

The picture of gallant Jennie Camp brings back a flood of memories—once entirely happy—now tinged with sadness over the end of that era. I spent a happy hour admiring, petting, and taking pictures of Jennie and her first foal, Little Tommie, named for her equally gallant rider (then) Captain Thomson. The next year I had the same happy experience with Jennie and her filly foal, Tommie's sister, and asked Col. Jimmie Adamson to please name her next filly "Jennie's Own."

How inconceivably sad many fine horsemen must be at being "denied the great pleasure in life that comes from association with horses", to quote Col. F. M. Hamilton, formerly Chief, U. S. Remount.

B. f. by War Relic—Moonflower, by *Bull Dog

Ch. c. by Whirlaway—Tacky Sue, by Hard Tack

Of the 19 Spendthrift Keeneland yearlings, 6 are out of mares with nothing to race. However, of the remaining 13, 7 are out of stakes winners or dams of stakes winners in America, Australia, New Zealand, and Ireland and 2 others have produce to place in stakes. Another mare equalled the world's record for 3 furlongs. These yearlings are sired by such as *Alibhai, Bull Lea, *Bernborough, Eight Thirty, Jet Pilot, Pensive, War Admiral, War Jeep, War Relic and Whirlaway. By pedigree and individuality . . . by any measure, these yearlings are stand-outs.

Four of the mares are daughters of Myrtlewood, including Crepe Myrtle, dam of the great Myrtle Charm. There is a yearling full-sister to Your Host, a brother to Lurline B., and half-brother to Selector, all stakes winners. The stakes-placed Lynn, is dam of the stakes winner Stirrup Cup, while the stakes winner, Painted Veil is already dam of a stakes winner, plus the good 2-year-old winner Mohammedan. Of Tacky Sue's 3 foals, 2 (Round View and King Bay) were stakes winners, the third placed in stakes. Also, Dogrose has 2 foals to race, both winners, including the stakes winner Feudin Fightin.

Beverly Hills Winds Up Polo Season

Russell Havenstrite's Organization Defeats Freebooters In Inter-Club Finale As Plans Are Laid To Compete In Long Island In Fall

Wilson Miller

This past June 4th, Beverly Hills whipped the Freebooters 10-6 in an interclub game, California's polo finale. Monk Jowell and Bobby Fletcher sparked Beverly Hills with four goals apiece. In this last game of the season, Beverly Hills enthusiasts were treated by the return from Hawaii of a number of their younger players, Monk Jowell, Don Howden and Carl Beal. Beal, it is remembered, shuttled between here and Hawaii to play so creditably at back against the Mexicans.

Beverly Hills players have uniformly reflected great improvement in hitting strength and team play as a result of this season's play against strong, able opponents, represented in the Texas Hurricanes and the Mexican Internationalists. Leading off today's game, Jowell picked up the ball on a throw in and carried it easily 200 yards goalwards. Ridden off hard by Beal within an easy toss of the goal, Fletcher, right behind, tapped it through the posts for the first tally.

Russ Havenstrite, whose mallet has been over the mantle during the championship games, proved to be an able and strong back. It was not until well into the second chukker that Aidan Roark was able to spectacularly break through the combined Beverly Hills team, grabbing the ball on a knock in and tallying single handed. To establish a lead, Roark promptly followed this with a 60 yard penalty goal.

Enjoying a three-goal handicap, Beverly Hills came back, all out, to justify their superiority. Just as hard, the Freebooters countered. Riding off Skene in a hard bump, Beal became unseated, saving himself and thrilling the crowd in best rodeo fashion by clinging to and under the neck of his speeding mount. When the pony slowed down, Beal fell to the ground, got up, then hit the turf again, either in brief thanksgiving or to get his breath, or both.

This thrill-studded chukker continued with a neat piece of team play, again by Fletcher. Ridden hard by an opponent, paralleling the goal twenty yards out, Fletcher, at full speed, deftly cut under his horse's tail for a clean goal. Rallying, Carl Crawford took the ball the length of the field, only to be hooked right between the posts with Skene making the save.

Coupled with skill, every winner has to have a little luck. Opening the third, a foul shot by Skene was knocked down by an opponent. Seizing the opportunity, Fletcher tapped it in. On a knock in by their opponents, easily 60-70 yards out, Fletcher powerfully backed the ball, to have it roll slowly between the unprotected posts.

It was gratifying to see Fletcher get this chance to demonstrate his ability in offensive play. During the Texas games, it was apparent that his assignment was to at least try to neutralize the famous Smith, a hard, unglamorous occupation.

The fourth opened with a battle between top men, Skene and Roark. Bob, hotly pursued by Roark, carried the ball the length of the field, only to be hooked right between the posts. With his height and reach, Aidan is a dangerous man even at a length. Russ Havenstrite, eager to get in some stretch running, controlled the ball two hundred and fifty yards down the boards, then confounded his pursuers with a neat pass to Fletcher, who couldn't miss today.

From Havenstrite's cue, Beal rallied his team with a similar stretch run in the fifth and singlehandedly scored. Long back strokes seemed to be the order of the day. On a desperate save by Beal, Jowell countered with a long, sharply angled back hander that looked like it would never make it, but did. Havenstrite made a timely save against a long drive of Roark's only to have Howden come up fast for an encouraging 5th tally.

The above mentioned luck was with the Beverly Hills quartet again in the sixth. A penalty shot of Skene's bounced off an opponent for a goal. The aforementioned backhanders came into play again with a long high one of Howden's splitting the posts. Encouraged, the Freebooters cut loose with a high style of riding and passing to cut the lead, but the Beverly Hills quartet was too tightly organized, and the bell ended a season's polo, played by many of the best and enjoyed by all.

The general consensus of opinion coupled with the feature articles in The Chronicle's Annual Polo Issue indicated that Polo is making a strong comeback from its war time prostration. Beverly Hills, largely in the person of Russ Havenstrite, has made a strong bid to hold up this end of the country's participation. Among the problems was spectator attendance, as it relates to television or no television. In the beginning of the season, Beverly Hills had the problem of a somewhat unbalanced team. Veteran skill in the persons of Roark and Skene, with largely 'comers' representing the balance. Beverly Hills, in bringing forward these young men, did so at the expense of games, but they have uniformly demonstrated substantial gains during the season. The investment should reflect itself in subsequent play this year, and it is not unreasonable to believe that next year should find Beverly Hills with a top team in any league.

Announced, during the course of the game, was the intention of a Beverly Hills team to invade Long Island for the Junior Open this coming September. The tentative line up for Beverly Hills is Bob Skene, Captain, Bob Fletcher, Aidan Roark and Carl Beal. Among older hands at the game, it may be remembered that California has not been represented in the East since 1924 when the Old Midwick group won the Junior and Senior championships with such Polo greats as Eric Pedley, Arthur Perkins and Carleton Burke, to name a few.

Stanford Leads Polo Series At Golden Gate With Four Victories

John J. Walsh

On Sunday, June 4th, the polo double header at the Golden Gate Field ended with Stanford University and the Presidio Turf Club in the winning bracket. The Stanford Redskins gained a 5-4 lead over Sacramento in the fourth chukker and held the score to those figures until the final whistle.

Sacramento started with a two goal handicap but this lead was hurriedly erased by two goals from the mallet of Bill Decker. From then on the lead changed sides until the fifth Stanford goal in the fourth chukker. The fifth and sixth chukkers consisted of Stanford keeping the ball within the Sacramento 80-yard line and the fact that they couldn't score shows how hard the boys from the state capital were riding. When the Sacramentans couldn't get to the ball they latched onto the nearest red shirted rider, hooked his mallet or rode him hard, and forced him into hurried shots. Time after time the ball went over the back line but never between the goal posts. This is the third Stanford win and places them well in the lead of the Pacific Coast Polo League.

In the second game the Presidio Turf Club defeated the University Club by a score of 8-5. It was a better competitive game than the score indicates with high scoring honors being divided between Ernie Pierard and Captain Hunt, both having three goals to their credit.

New York Polo Played On Four Week-End Fronts

Bill Goodrich

It was a wonderfully cool and sunny day in and around New York June 11. It was by far the best weekend of the spring—thus the reason why there was polo on all four fronts.

After two weeks of being stymied by inclement weather, the Blind Brook Polo and Turf Club, Port Chester, N. Y.,—under the auspices of the Squadron A Association was able to break past the barrier for the first time this season. The "home" teams—Blind Brook and Squadron A. collided with victory going to the latter by 11 to 5.

At the Fort Hamilton Army post, the Hamilton Polo Club opened the 1950 season as scheduled. The George Yeager-Bud Heatley-Ray Harrington-John Pflug combination defeated the Rumson (N. J.) Polo Club by 9 to 3. A crowd of 1500 persons watched the inaugural—the second in the post World War II period.

Down Long Island way, the Westbury riders topped Bostwick Field by 7 to 6, at Bostwick Field and the Horseshoe Polo Club dumped Bethpage by 15 to 5, at the Bethpage State Park.

Riding without Dr. Clarence C. (Buddy) Combs, 8-goal Internationalist, the Hamilton Polo Club was impressive in its one-sided victory. The Rumson Four was unable to put forth its best efforts because of two last minute changes in the lineup. Rumson played without the services of Tom Lawrence and Dick Metcalf. Lawrence fractured three ribs a week previously, while Metcalf was called away by the sudden passing of his grandmother.

The play at Fort Hamilton was slow. The players attributed the slow-up to the slippery turf. It will be better from now on, the Fort Hamilton officials promised.

With Heatley, Harrington and Pflug hitting up to him with considerable force, Yeager was able to romp off with the top scoring honors of the match with four goals. Heatley was next in the scoring with three goals, while Harrington and Pflug made one each. Rumson lined up with Charley Whitney, Don Sweeney, Bill Reber and Chris Ballantyne. All but Whitney scored single goals.

The outstanding player for Rumson was Ballantyne. He was all over the field. His defensive work along with that of Reber's kept the Hamilton margin of victory lower.

A new referee—Albie Stewart, Yale—was introduced to the Fort Hamilton fans. His handling of the game was good.

After the opening period at Blind Brook, the club named team dropped behind the Squadron A riders. The Paul Miller, Walter Phillips—Tom Glynn-Tom Long unit hit between the uprights in every period but the fifth.

Bostwick Field was the scene of another hard fought and closely contested match. The audience at "Little Pete's place" was 2600. Bostwick accounted for two thirds of his teams goals, but his teams efforts were overshadowed by that of the play put forth by Robert Luyties, Henry Lewis, III, Alan Corey, Jr., and Devereux Milburn.

A mighty powerful Horseshoe team, with good ponies added, out-pressed Bethpage.

Detroit's Rangers Win 10-2 In Game With Pittsfield

K. S. Drake

Pittsfield Mass., to Detroit Michigan is quite a jog even by air, but Zenas C. Colt, Herb Pennell and Arthur Mason came that far to meet Detroit's Ivory Rangers in four chukkers of very fast polo at Ivory Field, Wednesday, June 14th. The Pittsfield Riding and Polo Association, winners of the National Twelve Goal tournament in 1948 came a long way to take a 10-2 loss from Jack Ivory, A. J. (Mac) Stefani and Walter Nicholls riding in the red and white colors of The Ivory Rangers. The unbalanced score was certainly unexpected, comparing the total handicaps; the Ivory team rated three goals higher based on the original line-ups, but almost in the first minute of play Zenas Colt's horse slipped and went down pinning Colt's arm under his horse. As a result Colt was forced to leave the game about the middle of the second period and be taken to a doctor. Hank Evinger put on the uniform of Pittsfield's number two and did a mighty good job for the visiting New Englanders. Going back to the handicaps, with this substitution Pittsfield got a little edge in rating and rode out the last half of the second chukker together with all of the third and fourth with only a total difference of 2 goals lower than the Ivory Team.

Jack Ivory, who last week was seemingly getting goals like gathering oranges in a basket, took a back seat this week for teammate Walter Nicholls who piled up the total of five for Detroit and Mac Stefani who accounted for four. Ivory was still the hard riding hard hitting number two and didn't let down at any time in the four periods. If you have been following the Rangers whether in New York, Chicago or Detroit the Ivory to Stefani combination is quite an organization, on their home field they are uncanny. They are brothers-in-law, and have been playing together for a good long time.

For Pittsfield Herb Pennell gets the credit for their two goals, both were made in the second chukker, and in quick succession—for a few minutes it looked like Pittsfield might get going and give the Rangers a rough time. As it turned out Nicholls for Detroit banged in two goals in the second and Ivory with Stefani accounted for two more, this put the game on ice with a four point lead that the Rangers broadened in the last half of the match.

The crowd of fans who watched a four chukker preliminary game between Pontiac and The Broncos and the feature exceeded in numbers those at the opening games a week ago. Weather was favorable and local newspapers were beginning to take an interest. The forerunner to the Ranger-Pittsfield match was won by The Broncos 14-7. Bob Peterson paced the winners with six goals, while Orville Rice led the scoring for Pontiac with five. In our book Rice is a handy man to have around on a polo team. Coming from Texas last year to join the Ivory Club, he won a great many friends with his easy Texas drawl, and did some very nice poloing through the season.

Greens Win Northwest Title At Spring Tournament; Consolation Cup Won By Toppenish Against Boise Freebooters

Dabney Taylor

From the first throw in on the afternoon of Decoration Day until the final double header on the following Sunday at Boise Barracks Field, polo fans witnessed really first rate low goal polo.

Three Boise teams, the Greens, the Freebooters and the Red Devils, together with the visiting teams of Spokane and Toppenish, Washington, attracted large and enthusiastic attendance which cheered the Green team to its win of the Northwest title when undefeated it met the Spokane four. With the close score of 8 to 7, the Spokane Club tied up the score three times in the second, third and fifth chukkers respectively. The Greens spotted Spokane three which has no handicapped players at this time.

However, not all the glory went to the home players as Toppenish took the Consolation cup in another thrilling contest against the Boise Freebooters with the sixth chukker opening with a 6 to 6 tie. Toppenish was allowed a 3-goal handicap against the Freebooters.

themselves. Lucky Johnson, president of the Boise Club and captain of the Green team, was a tower of strength with his effective hitting and unquestioned good sportsmanship. Walter Cranston, who formed an effective part of the father and son combination on the Green team, gave a good account of himself.

Tom "Red" Guy, formerly at 8, and now rated at 6 goals, was playing strategic polo for the Freebooters. His angle shots were not only out of this world but out between the goal posts most of the time for a tally for his team. His presence in Boise during the past two polo seasons, where he is training ponies and playing, has made him a tremendous asset to the Boise Club. Guy has also been playing during the winter season in California with other Idaho players, among them John Stringer, a fearless and aggressive back who also played four with Guy on the Freebooters. Dave Little, also of the Freebooters at number three, is new at the game but is a fine rider with an interesting career

Coleman who was on the ball, knocked it between the posts. Finally, after much anguish of spirit, the referee disallowed the goal and fouled Barringer, tossing the ball in on the sixty yard line. In the following flurry Don Jacobs, a strong and steady player for the Reds, scored a goal which secured the game for the Red Devils.

The playing of the visitors from Spokane and Toppenish was of excellent caliber. Carrol Lawrence of Toppenish is outstanding in both riding and stick work. Charlie Gibson is an old hand at the game and very reliable. Dr. Frank Sherer, with his high action spotted ponies, made some brilliant field runs as did aggressive Jack Young.

Spokane had some fine horses and Kenny Hauser mounted on his sorrel mare Barricade was a strong supporting man for his team. Bob Mills played fast polo despite the fact that he is suffering from arthritis to such an extent that he has to mount from his car bumper. Harold McCullum, Roe McMullen and Don Crawford playing and substituting, all showed good polo and well integrated team play.

Harry East refereed for all tournament games and for the first and last games had Pete Jackson with him. Jackson flew in from his ranch in Wyoming to assist in this important function. Their sportsmanlike judgments and careful refereeing show how much can be done in this field to keep the games safe, interesting and sporting.

Stanford Leads Series

polo teams battled it out to a 7-7 tie at the Golden Gate field on Sunday, June 11th. From whistle to bell both teams were as busy as a flock of bees with their offensive play. Neither side stalled at any time to attempt some trick of defence. Bob Smith, junior, was delayed in reaching the field so Wesley Swope substituted for the opening two chukkers. When Smith did arrive San Francisco was behind by one goal. He scored twice to Jack Conant's one goal to even the score at half time. The local team went on to lead 6-4 in the early stages of the fifth chukker and here Art Alderette gathered his faltering team mates together. Sparked by his own brilliant goal they went on to overtake San Francisco twice from behind to end a tied up score. Both teams decided to forego a sudden death period on account of their ponies having had enough play for the day. The game will be played off at a later date. Jack Conant was high scorer with 5 goals.

In the second game Stanford won their fourth and final league game 6-4. It was the last time that Bill Decker and Lin Madliner will play for the Redskins as they graduate this month. Dan O'Keefe for the University Club and Lin Madliner for the Redskins were the outstanding players of the game.

Johnny Cranston only 14, was one of the sensations of the tournament. He played one for the Green team. It may be recalled to followers of western polo that 29-year-old Bobby Fletcher, now with the Midwick Club and rated at 5 goals, started on this same field at even an earlier age to play and learn the game with his father Steen Fletcher and his uncle Frank. The latter came up from California to play some of the keenest polo of his career and oppose his son-in-law Pete Hirschberg, and son George W. Fletcher, who played on the Red Devils and Freebooter teams respectively. George Fletcher recently returned from Los Angeles where he substituted in several late season matches for Cecil Smith. Both Pete, a recent comer to the game, and George, who has played for several years, showed marked improvement this year and both gave excellent accounts of in polo before him.

For the Boise Red Devils Johnny Barringer starred. Twenty-two years of age and dedicated to the sport, he carries on the tradition left him by his late father Charlie Barringer, one of the old invincibles of early north-west polo.

It was fast riding, hard hitting Billy Coleman, Red one, that Johnny was unlucky enough to run into at the Red goal posts. Billy Coleman and his mount went down with a crash, but without injury. However Johnny took a hard spill and injured three ribs that put him out for the rest of the tournament. This melee produced a situation that Referee Harry East of Santa Barbara, formerly an 8-goal man himself, found a poser. In all of his years of play Easy said he had never encountered anything of a similar nature, for as the two team mates collided, Barringer fouled Coleman.

The Care of A Showhorse

Steps Leading Up To Perfectly Groomed Horse Are Long and Tedious With Not Too Satisfying Results At Times

Jean Slaughter

For several years I have kept a horse in my own small barn, doing him myself. In this way I have become an expert on the Care of Showhorses, of which there is nothing more fragile. For the benefit of those who also own, or plan to own, Showhorses, I hereby set down a few invaluable Rules to follow, along with a few pertinent Suggestions and Warnings.

Choosing Your Horse. Greys of any kind, unless you are prepared to wrap said grey in pajamas every night, are to be avoided like the plague. So are horses with any number of white stockings. Socks are permissible, as one can always say, "Dear me, but the going is muddy—or dusty—or how peat moss does stain; his socks were lovely and white this morning."

General Care. A Showhorse must have at least an hour of exercise a day to keep him fit. This is an enjoyable task. You will find Spring a happy challenge when you have the choice of exercising either through mud holes and swollen and not staying home to Take Him Out.

If you think things are Not Going Right, obtain a raw egg and apply to the suspected leg or hoof. If egg fries, call The Vet.

If the horse falls out of his stall, crippled in all four legs, don't look at your calendar. This will happen exactly 48 hours before A Show.

REMEMBER: A Showhorse may be laid up for only two reasons:

a. At last shoeing he was, unfortunately, Pricked. A Pricked Foot produces lameness varying in degree from slight favoring to what an uneducated, non-showing person might call a bowed tendon.

b. Fever. This same non-showing person will be astonished at how often a rising splint can cause a Fever.

SERIOUS ILLNESS always occurs at night, usually the night of the Country Club dance. If the horse has the Colic, you will be up until dawn. This will teach you to keep the horse away from wet clover but will

Care of the Horses coat. Conformation horses are a Pain in the Neck. Line the inside of the stall with sponge rubber, rake every pebble and projecting root from his paddock and he will still lose hunks of hair from his shining coat. How he does this you will never know. Gremlins. Those same gremlins will wind his perfect tail around infinitesimal irregularities on his water bucket and pull out handfuls.

However, if you should be wise enough to have a Working Hunter, honorable scars and blemishes not to be considered as it says in the rule book, he will have a coat as perfect as a million dollar mink.

The day before the Show you will spend among brushes, sponges and rags. After putting them away you will return to your horse, exhausted, only to find he has slipped his halter and is cavorting like a yearling in the deepest mudhole he can find. This brings up the question of whether or not to Wash a Horse.

As a last resort this is often tried. After an hour the horse stands, dripping wet, glowing like a neon sign. You smile. You put away your buckets. Slowly the horse dries as you walk him. Finally you tie him and stand back to get a good look at him, preparing to be thrilled to the core. He looks, you find, like a teddy bear. Coat on end. Shining just like the trophies you haven't polished for two months. Don't shoot the horse; it won't put the shine back. You've got two hours to work with the body brush still ahead.

Only the artistic can wash a horse and let him dry in the sun. To those who like Impressionistic painting, the resulting muddy yellow bleach on the horse's back and sides will be attractive. To you—and to the judges—it won't. You must dry him in the shade, which will take only two or three times as long.

Now, however, it is the evening before the SHOW. The horse is gleaming, your tack is glowing, you have finally found your fourth shipping bandage, and you are in the house preparing for a gay evening to forget your cares.

Suddenly a terrible outburst can be heard from the barn. Thumpings and wild bangings and whinnies of rage, accompanied by the dreadful sound of galloping hooves.

You fly. You are jet-propelled. Your Showhorse is tearing about in his stall as though demented. The paddock is open and the pony whose job it is to keep the Showhorse happy in his work has disappeared.

You shudder at the furious sounds emitting from the stall and run to look for the errant little beast that is responsible. It is nowhere. Gremlins again.

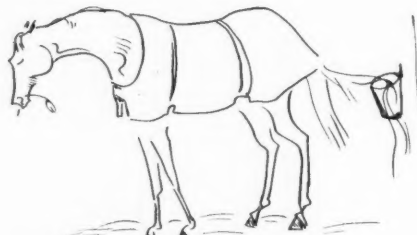

Don't panic. The most your Showhorse can do is break a leg. Several hours later you find the pony in the neighbor's garden, eating roses. Why it should have to have this sudden desire for roses the evening before a Show you will never know. Return the creature to the paddock so the Showhorse can greet it and be happy. Of course the horse has broken out into a dripping sweat, but all you have to do is walk him for an hour and then groom him again. Chain the pony into the paddock first.

Have a friend open the stall door for you the morning of the show. After you have received his report, have a look yourself. Horse all in one piece—no wounds, no bruises—there, I told you not to get a horse with white stockings. You're going to have to wash them again.

Finally you are at the Show, waiting at the in-gate. A friend comes up beside you. "You've got that horse looking pretty good," he says casually. You beam. You pat your horse's shining shoulder. "Oh, it's nothing," you laugh weakly. "I enjoy doing it." And, strangely enough, you do.

— at least an hour of exercise a day — rivers or an hour's hacking on main roads. In Summer, the only way to avoid the flies is to exercise before sunrise. A little thing like a cloud-burst cannot keep you from Getting Him Out. Your tack after such a ride will look lovely, and feel rather like cardboard.

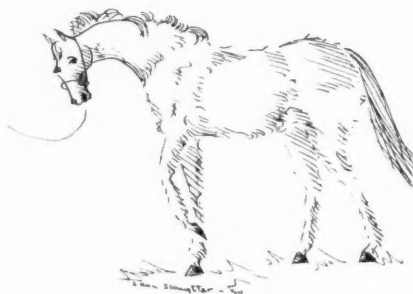

Your horse must be kept clean. He must be groomed first thing in the morning to tidy him up for the day. Before you take him out, the mud he has rubbed into his coat in the paddock must be removed. When you return from your ride, another quick going over will be necessary. The best way to make sure you will meet someone else who owns a Showhorse is to take your horse out without dusting him off.

The Showhorse in Health and Sickness. About two weeks before a Show, cross your fingers before opening stall door in the morning. If your horse is breathing, consider yourself lucky; he is still alive. Survey his legs. Absence of tendons denotes that he is Filled or Stocked Up, and it serves you right for going to that wedding the day before not impress a prospective employer with whom you have an interview that morning. He will be smart enough to play golf for a hobby and will hesitate to hire anyone who looks so very much like the day-after-the-night-before.

FAIRLY OFFERED

An attempt to stage an auction of Thoroughbred and other hunter stock in the Genesee Valley last week met with but scant success. Dr. Joseph O'Dea of Avon, and Robert Dygert of Genesee, were the impresarios of the occasion, the sale being held at the old Ashantee Stables at Avon. "Doc" Bond and Humphrey S. Finney served in the stand as auctioneer and announcer.

It must have been very disheartening to the consignors and promoters to see their efforts achieve so little response. Despite the fact that all reserve bids were announced in advance, and the sale was a clean-cut, honest proposition from the start, there was just no buyer interest shown. The offerings, generally speaking sent up with moderate reserves, were with few exceptions well presented and in good condition. Perhaps there were too many fillies catalogued, and not enough of any one class of horse offered, whatever the reason few of the fifty-odd entries found new homes.

The promoters are to be congratulated on their efforts to put over a hunter auction, and it may be that another year they will be able to improve on some of the weaknesses of the last week's sale. At any rate, buyers will know that decent horses were honestly put up and were for sale at fair prices.—James-town.

ARMED RETIRED

The world's leading money winning gelding, Calumet Farm's Armed, has been retired to a life of ease on the farm. The now 9-year-old gelding by Bull Lea—Armful, by Chance Shot did not race as a 2-year-old and it was during his 4-year-old season that he really hit his stride in winning races in record times. Among the stakes he won were the Sheridan 'Cap (twice), Washington 'Cap, Pimlico Special, Widener (twice), Double Event (both sections), Philadelphia 'Cap, Dixie 'Cap, Suburban 'Cap, Whirl-away Stakes (twice), Washington Park 'Cap (twice), McLennan 'Cap, Gulfstream 'Cap, Stars and Stripes 'Cap, Arlington 'Cap, the Special (match race against Assault) and Sysonby Mile. As the champion was retired, his full brother, the 2-year-old Two Gun, died at Arlington Park. The juvenile contracted pneumonia during a trip from California.

PIMLICO STAYS

The question of whether Pimlico would have its meeting transferred to Laurel Park has been definitely decided—in favor of the Old Hill-top. Racing will continue at Pimlico and plans are getting underway for the remodeling and modernization of the present facilities at Pimlico. Harry A. Parr III, president of the board of directors, reported by letter to H. Courtenay Jenifer, chairman of the Maryland Racing Commission that the board of directors of the Maryland Jockey Club had voted unanimously to continue racing at the old Pimlico race course.

CHASING RIDERS

The National Steeplechase and Hunt Assn. has announced that effective immediately in all jumping races run at the major tracks under its jurisdiction, Steeplechase Trainers and Jockeys will be required to file an agreement covering first and second calls on riding services.

In cases where a jockey is to ride for someone other than the trainer who holds first call on his services, both jockeys and trainers have been requested to record all riding engagements in the condition book of the meeting, which is to be available for the stewards of the meeting in the event they have to decide on a conflicting claim for the services of a jockey for a race.

One effect of this change will be that jockeys will not be permitted to ride against their stable. It is also felt that these regulations will eliminate, in most cases, conflicting claims for riding services. In general, these changes closely follow the procedure in effect for flat racing, and are the outgrowth of a decision reached by the Board of Stewards at a recent meeting.

TWO PLACES AT ONCE

Two Chicagoians, Paul Butler and Wilson Evans managed to be at two places almost at the same time. On Saturday, June 10th, The Oakbrook Polo Club Horse Show was in progress at Hinsdale, Illinois while on the same date the big event in the Hoosier State was The Royalton Hunt Meeting at Indianapolis. Both

Mr. Butler and Mr. Evans had a real heart felt desire to see The Royalton, but with matters at home pressing found it a bit of a problem to cope with the 300 mile distance between the cities. A little before two o'clock in the afternoon Mr. Evans' private plane landed nearby the course and he was on hand to see the first of the eight races carded. Just before the fourth race, The John B. Stokely Memorial, Mr. Butler's Beechcraft Bonanza circled the landing field and allowed him time to see his entry Hasty Colleen run in the Royalton feature over brush. Both men were back in Chicago before the events in the show ring were concluded that afternoon.—K. S. D.

MOUNTED ADVERTISING

The old expression, "It pays to advertise" is at least taken in a literal way by the members of The Bloomfield Open Hunt who sponsor The Detroit Horse Show. To be sure that the farmers, and country squires would get the urge to be on hand at their three day event, the hardier members of the Club convened for a thirty mile ride cross country (actually hitting quite a few hamlets) from Bloomfield Hills to Metamora, Michigan. Fred and Marie Morris, Susan Fisher, Tom and Barbara Wilson, Bud Pierce, Toni and Donna DiMarco led the group.—K. S. D.

BEDLAM AT OAK BROOK

The amazing spectacles in the 30 and over adult horsemanship, a large tub of ice in the center of the ring, filled with bottles of beer, from which all adults would draw, after one or two exhausting turns around the ring. Entries? Well—the veteran Stanley Luke, maker of horses, solidly mounted,—polo playing Peter Perkins perched precariously, jumping.—Ted Mohlman learning to post on Baldy, which is as old, if not older, than Ted—little Mr. Emmett, (I daresay he has waded to seventy and started many a well known young equestrian on his or her way) gallantly astride a wee grey pony, on a lead rein, junior hunting cap perched on brow, slipping his bottle. As ring master, Pete Caulfield tried to keep law and order and judge Freddie Pinch mopped his brow and turned to the saddle horses as a last resort.—L. B. C.

AMATEUR BUGABOO

The old Olympic bugaboo, "Once a pro always a pro" threatens to cut down some of the aspirants who have already been chosen as likely candidates for the Olympic team by the New York Zone Committee. At a meeting last week of the parent organization, the executive committee recommended the suspension of two of the squad pending a hearing. Augustus Kirby who is chairman of the eligibility Committee and a member of our national Olympic Committee in Washington has been asked to report on the riders and is taking up these two questionable cases with the other members of his eligibility committee, Drew Montgomery and Tupper Cole. The N. Y. Zone Committee has not yet acted on the recommendation since it does not meet until the week of June 25th. In order to coordinate the activities of the eligibility committee of the parent Olympic organization with the American Horse Shows Association amateur standing committee, Adrian van Sinderen, president of the A. H. S. A. has appointed Mr. Montgomery a member of this amateur standing committee so that Mr. Montgomery will serve and represent both associations.

The American Horse Shows Association ruling on amateurs is considerably more elastic and practical than the Olympic ruling. According to our national show body, a professional may revert to an amateur status after he ceases to derive his livelihood from horses. Upon proper application to the association and after one year, the association will reinstate him or her as an amateur in good standing. Not so the Olympic ruling which considers a professional is a professional for all time, even though he may make a million dollars on another venture. Certainly this hard and fast ruling needs some overhauling to meet present conditions in every country in the world.

BARBARA WRIGHT'S UNLUCKY LANDING

Hard luck struck Barbara Wright late in May in a fall that wasn't a fall. Her horse bobbed at a fence and Mrs. Wright went off landing on her feet, facing toward her horse, who did not go down either. By some strange freak, Mrs. Wright's foot struck the ground at such an angle and with such a force as to break the instep bone that forms the arch of her foot although she appeared to have landed lightly and with perfect balance. An operation was necessary to reset the bone and it will be some time before Mrs. Wright will be going sound again, although the surgeon is most optimistic for complete recovery.
